Phillips, the Fine Art Auctioneers of London, England, have been selling musical instruments at auction since 1796. Fine instruments are a tradition at Phillips. Monthly sales are held at which overseas buyers and vendors form a large proportion of clients. Our monthly sales include old and modern string, wind, and ethnographical instruments, bows, reference books and dictionaries. Edward Stollar, the highly experienced specialist in charge of the department of musical instruments at Phillips, will be pleased to answer all your enquiries concerning sales and catalogues and to advise on all aspects of selling or buying.

The American Musical Instrument Society

The American Musical Instrument Society (AMIS) is an international organization founded in 1971 to promote study of the history, design, and use of musical instruments in all cultures and from all periods.

ACTIVITIES: AMIS holds an annual meeting with symposia, papers, and performances of interest to the membership. Meetings have been held at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.; The Boston Museum of Fine Arts; The University of Michigan at Ann Arbor; and New York University.

PUBLICATIONS AND PROJECTS: AMIS publishes the scholarly Journal comprising an annual number and three annual Newsletters providing the membership with information on worldwide activities, book lists and comments, and general short articles of interest to museum curators, collectors, performers, and others interested in musical instruments. A current project of the Society is the compilation of a Directory of Contemporary American Musical Instrument Makers.

MEMBERSHIP: Membership in AMIS is open to both individuals and institutions upon payment of the annual dues of $12.50. Members receive the Journal and the Newsletter, as well as all mailings relative to activities of the Society. Checks, or bank drafts, payable in U.S. dollars, should be made out to the American Musical Instrument Society, Inc., and, together with a membership application, sent to the Treasurer: Ms. Linda Tauber, P.O. Box 4147, Shreveport, Louisiana 71104.
